Dear colleagues,

We are delighted to inform you that the 5th Health for All Film Festival features a Special Migrants and Refugees Health Film Prize.

WHO invites public health institutions from around the world, nongovernmental organizations, communities, activists and students in public health, film schools, and other relevant domains to submit their original short films that shed light on the impact of migration and displacement on the physical and mental health and well-being of people on the move.

Short films can also raise awareness about the rights and unique health needs of these populations, and showcase how access to health care contributes to their better health and well-being. Independent filmmakers, production companies, and TV broadcasters are also invited to participate. The 5th call for short films is open until 31 January 2024.

Please find attached some visuals for dissemination.

Further information, including how to apply and promote this call in your network can be found here:
